Indoor S'mores

REALISTIC FICTION

Ms. Robin's Tasting Notes:

This recipe is inspired by
The Last Loon by Rebecca Upjohn.

About the Book:

Evan is stuck spending the holidays with his ex-con aunt Mag, when he discovers a lone loon that needs his help to survive.

Genre: Realistic Fiction:

Realistic fiction is a genre of stories where the characters, settings, and events could very well happen in real life.

Book-Recipe Connection:

Evan enjoys the winter bonfire, where he tastes his first ever s'more. It doesn't have to be winter to enjoy s'mores, and with this recipe you don't even need a fire!

Ingredients

- 1 graham cracker
- 1 marshmallow
- 1 chocolate bar

Directions

Set your oven to broil. Break each of your graham crackers in half down the middle. Line a baking sheet with as many graham cracker halves and s'mores as you want to make. Top each graham cracker half with 1 marshmallow. You can cut the marshmallows in half and place them on that way, if you want to prevent them from rolling off.

Cook in your oven on the middle rack, for about 1-2 minutes, until the marshmallows start to turn golden. Watch closely the whole time.

Top each marshmallow with a piece of chocolate and a second graham cracker half. Allow s'mores to set for about a minute for chocolate to melt. Enjoy!
